PROFILE

24, and 10 years in the business

At 14, Benoit Laliberté was selling computer games from his home. Even before he dropped out of CEGEP at 17, he had already incorporated Jitec, a six-store computer retailer. Meet Quebec's Young Entrepreneur of the Year. PAGE 3

INVESTING

Ferrabee: Blue chips still hot

Optimism, tempered with caution, seems to be the consensus view of stock traders as the market continues its bull run, writes columnist James Ferrabee. And for profitably cautious picks, you can't beat blue-chips like IBM and CP Ltd. PAGE 4

Hadekel: Beware of escalator bonds

Watch out for interest-rate deals that look too good to be true, writes columnist Peter Hadekel. One such deal is a bond that pays a good initial rate, but leaves an investor at the mercy of the issuer. PAGE 2

ECONOMY

Gherson: Give B.C. a chance

If British Columbia's new premier, Glen Clark, is able to deal with a big budget mess, he might go on to help win B.C. its rightful voice in national decision-making, columnist Giles Gherson says. PAGE 5

WORKPLACE

Job getting on your nerves?

When your stomach churns at the thought of starting another work week, it might be time to consider a career change. PAGE 12
